As we soon begin another calendar season, we are reminded that for over half of the year we have remained at home, following social distancing guidelines. We continue to hold on to hope that we will soon go back to normalcy, or to how things used to be, while at the same time surprising ourselves with our resilience and discovering new ways of keeping a sense of community. I truly miss being out in the community with you. I would like to let you know that you are not alone, we are always here to help. I will be introducing new, adapted activities and I encourage you all to participate as we bring back a sense of togetherness during these uncertain times.
